■ MATT DUCHENE

First NHL point creates buzz

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

When Matt Duchene earned his first point with the Colorado Avalanche, it was the assist heard around the world.

In this wired age, the Internet was humming with stories about the Haliburton native's first official regular season game with the Avalanche. Many writers linked Duchene's first game in the NHL with the retirement of the jersey of Duchene's childhood idol, former Avalanche captain Joe Sakic.

Story after story mentioned how young Duchene had a poster of Sakic hanging on the wall of his bedroom in Haliburton and how proud Duchene was to be at the Pepsi Centre in Denver on the night when Colorado honoured their beloved Sakic.

Denver Post: "It will be quite the spectacle: Joe Sakic, accept-

Minister pitches HST to business breakfast

JENN WATT

Reception was mixed for the minister of revenue and the harmonized sales tax he's selling at the Chamber of Commerce breakfast last Thursday at Halimar Resort.

Along with local MPP Rick Johnson, John Wilkinson came to Haliburton to answer questions and dispel fears about coming flat tax of 13 per cent on nearly all consumer goods and services.

"We're doing it because we need to get people back to work," Wilkinson told the group.

"If we want to trade more with the rest of the world, we have to make sure our businesses are in the same position," he said, noting that 130 developed countries have harmonized taxes administered at the national level.

The only two countries left with two taxes are the United States and some Canadian provinces.

HST will hit the marketplace on July 1, 2010 and the most common concern is that consumers won't like being taxed more on things that were never taxed by the province before.

For example, previously gasoline was taxed only by the federal government with GST - which is five per cent - now it

Kennel tours support Iditarod quest

Amid all the excitement about qualifying for the 2010 Iditarod comes the realization that it will cost a lot of money just to get Hank DeBruin and his two dozen long-distance racing dogs to Alaska.

As a result, DeBruin and his wife Tanya McCready, are embarking on a series of fundraising events.

One of them is tours of their kennels overlooking Drag Lake. The couple owns and operates Winterdance dogsled tours and you can meet the 120 purebred Siberian Huskies that are now part of the Winterdance family. Each one has his or her own personality and seems born to race.

The next scheduled tours are on the weekend of October 17 and people are encouraged to phone ahead, 457-5281 to make a reservation.

You can also sponsor the team by visiting www.winterdance.com

Meanwhile, DeBruin and his team have already begun getting in shape for the holy grail of dogsled races. They plan to log 1,000 miles on the trails before driving to Alaska next March.

■ Fleming College

elearning brings colleges and universities to Haliburton

JENN WATT

Staff Reporter

In order to get a certificate in computer basics, Julieann Chadwick faced a daily drive of more than an hour to and from Bancroft's Loyalist College, incurring the extra expense of gasoline and braving the slick, windy roads all winter long.

It wasn't a pleasant prospect for the Haliburton resident.

So, when Chadwick learned that she'd be able to do her course work from Loyalist in a special centre at Haliburton's Fleming College, she was thrilled.

"I thought, 'Wow, okay, this is really cool,'" Chadwick said when she found out her certificate was offered through a new provincial program called the e-learn network.

"Coming here saves me the drive," she said from the state-of-the-art computer lab at Fleming.

She and three other students regularly use the computers, printers and high-speed Internet to connect to teachers and classmates around the world.

Chadwick sends her assignments via email to her teacher in Scotland, who marks them and returns them electronically.

A fellow Loyalist student, who also lives in Haliburton, is taking a business management certificate through the e-learn network. The student (who asked not to be named) engages in class discussion using live Internet chat and accesses course materials online.

The prospect of driving to Bancroft through the winter almost deterred her from enrolling at all. "I know it's something I don't want to do in the freezing rain," she said of the drive.

It was the e-learn network that persuaded her it was worth a shot.

The centre has been rapidly growing since it opened in June of this year. Starting with three computers, administrators found they had to expand to another room with two more computers to serve the need.

"The commitment is if there is a need, we service that need," said co-ordinator Shanthi Bascombe. The Ministry of Training, Colleges and Universities funds the program, which has 17 locations in eastern and south-western Ontario run by Contact North.

Fleming College has given e-learn the space for free, recognizing that Haliburton's campus doesn't offer the range of courses provided by the e-learn network and also hoping to foster a culture of life-long learning, said campus principal Sandra Dupret.

"This lab provides an opportunity for members of our community access to a wide variety and levels of postsecondary education," Dupret said in an email.

"Personally, I really believe in encouraging life-long learning. It impacts so many things and can really change one's life, especially if you never thought anything beyond high school possible and if you are a first generation postsecondary learner," she said.

At the Haliburton location, 46 courses are being taken by 19 students, with that number set to increase with new enrolments in November and January.

One student is taking flight attendant training, another leadership management, one early childhood educator and another is doing a full bachelor's degree at university.

The program's goal is to "increase access to post-secondary learning at all colleges and universities in Ontario," Bascombe said.

To that end, the centres not only house computers for students, but also provide staff for technical and moral support. Staff help students enroll in programs, register for courses and stay motivated to complete school work.

Once students are enrolled in the e-learn network, they can use the centres across the province to keep on top of their studies.

When Chadwick had to go to Bracebridge to have her car serviced, she told Bascombe who booked her a computer at the e-learn centre in that town.

"I was in for four hours while my car was being seen to," she said.

Chadwick now plans to use another centre in Stratford to do school work when she visits family there.

"The majority of people who come in to see me are people who always wanted to pursue postsecondary education," Bascombe said, "but were unable to move for re-education."

HST: Chamber members skeptical will be subject to PST as well, effectively pushing it to 13 per cent HST.

Local business owner Dave Bradley from the South Wind Motel told Wilkinson that the harmonized tax would only scare away his customers, who will head to the United States where there is less tax and the prices are lower.

"When you're talking it sounds really good to business people, but what you're saying is you're going to give a lot of people – consumers – money back in income tax, so when we want to spend that money, our sales taxes have gone up for everybody who are consumers, so it sounds to me like the best [thing] for us to do is to take that money and head across the border where the taxes are cheaper and the prices are less and spend our money there," Bradley said.

Wilkinson's rebuttal was that HST is business-friendly. It makes bookkeeping easier and refunds PST on raw materials improved by businesses into saleable products.

By receiving these rebates on supply taxes, businesses will be saving money, reducing costs and, the government hopes, passing those savings on to consumers.

"It's a valid concern," Wilkinson said of Bradley's comment.

"What we found in the 130 other countries and the four other provinces that it did lead to more consumer spending because prices went down, because the actual cost of business went down and that was passed through," he said.

He restated to the group that the province won't be making any more money on the harmonization and that the Liberals are cutting income tax as well as investing $40 million into the tourism industry.

Long-term care homes have perfect compliance

JENN WATT

Staff Reporter

Another year, another perfect score from the compliance advisor for Hyland Crest and Highland Wood.

For at least five years in a row both long-term care facilities have come out 100 per cent in line with provincial standards on everything from hygiene to programming to resident care.

"Every nursing home has an unannounced annual inspection," explained

Kathy Burt, director of care for both Hyland Crest and Highland Wood.

Burt credits the collaborative nature of both sites for their success – when there's something that could be improved upon, staff brainstorms to find ways to make it happen.

Perhaps it is the high quality that makes both homes so desirable – there is a combined wait list of about 70 people for when one of the 92 beds becomes available. The long-term care facilities combined employ about 100 people in the county.

Ups and downs of a hockey fan

It was the best of weeks, it was the worst of weeks for Haliburton hockey fans. As everyone cheered on Matt Duchene when he played his first regular season game with the Colorado Avalanche, they were also feeling deep disappointment that the Vancouver Canucks had decided to send Duchene's childhood friend, Cody Hodgson, back to the Brampton Battalion.

Everyone here wants to live in a perfect world, where young men who work hard to pursue their dreams get the reward they deserve. No one doubts that Matt and Cody have worked hard to get to where they are. They are conscientious players who are goal oriented – but not just about scoring goals. What everyone finds remarkable about them is that although they've enjoyed a high level of success at a young age, they remain very nice, down-to-earth people. They're as easy to like as they are to cheer on.

The problem with hyping their success, however, is that it creates lofty expectations and when those expectations aren't met, it can seem like a defeat. Even look at the wording for the Canucks' decision: Cody has been "sent back" to the OHL. But now it appears there is a lot happening behind the scenes and that Cody may have been caught up in a conflict – personal or professional – with the Canucks head coach. Watching what unfolds is both fascinating and disturbing.

So keep on cheering for two of the best hockey players this county has produced. They both deserve it.

Many thanks, Vince

Many people in Haliburton remember Vince Connaughan, who passed away last week, as the former owner of Stedman's. Around the Echo, however, he's also honoured as one of the Haliburton businessmen who's responsible for keeping the Echo afloat during some of its darkest days.

The Echo was established in 1884 and almost 100 years later, its owner was in financial distress. Rather than see the paper fold, a group of local businessmen stepped forward to keep it going. Vince Connaughan was one of them. This group of owners made one of their best decisions by hiring Len Pizzey as editor and then Len Pizzey made one of the best decisions of his life by taking the plunge and buying the paper from the relieved business owners.

In hindsight, buying a business may seem like an easy decision, but at the time the decision is fraught with risk and stress. Not only should we all be grateful for Connaughan's decision to start Stedman's, and rebuild the store and the building after the devastating fire in 1986, but we all owe him a debt of gratitude for making sure that the Echo survived its centennial and lived to print another paper!

Unbearable lightness of seeing

Last week I had one of those near death experiences that you sometimes hear folks speak of. It was exactly as they describe it too – I saw this bright light.

Unfortunately, it was caused by my uncle's new million-candle headlamp flashlight, which he turned on me as we were setting mallard decoys in the pre-dawn darkness.

The ensuing loss of my night vision, in turn, caused me to bang my head sharply on the cross member of the duck blind that I had to step into, hence the near death experience. Don't think the irony of it being called a duck blind was lost on me either.

Maybe I'm a dinosaur but I miss the flashlights we used in the old days. No one ever needed a seeing eye dog after using one of those – unless, of course, the mutt was trained to find things in abject darkness.

Reliable, they were not. Typically, they'd only work at the store and in broad daylight, lulling you into a false sense of security. Then they'd let you down when you needed them the most – as your duck boat was hurdling headlong into the pitch of night towards a shallow, stump-filled back bay where your duck blind was situated.

One minute, it'd be a shining beacon of comfort and assurance; the next it would be a big plastic unit that emitted nothing but darkness. Worse still, just as you had forsaken all hope of it ever working again and were about to hurl that cursed flashlight deep into the cattails, it would light up briefly – usually as you were swearing, shaking it and staring straight down into its lens. The only other inanimate object that had half as much of a sense of humour was the plug in your boat.

This is why buying a new flashlight continues to be one of the annual rituals practised by every duck hunter I know. You look for one that can light up the marsh, is waterproof, and reasonable on battery use. Then you settle for something that possesses none of those qualities but has cool camouflage.

These days, they are more powerful, however. The idea, I suppose, is to create the sort of artificial daylight frequently found in NFL stadiums and police interrogation rooms.

Worse still, some sadist invented the headlamp configuration, which essentially means that the minute you talk to a person wearing one, they turn to respond and blind you. Observing two hunters, wearing these things, talk to one another is sort of like watching Darth Vader and Luke Skywalker duel with light sabres, though not nearly as graceful.

Despite all this, flashlights continue to be an integral part of any duck hunting experience. Without them, you'd have no idea what just destroyed your propeller. For they generally choose to work again shortly after a situation like this.

That's why I bought my son his own genuine duck-hunting flashlight this season. Of course, I did something that no one ever did for me. I cautioned him on the pros and cons of relying on one. And I even mentioned the dangers.

As I told him, when it comes to flashlights, it's all fun and games until somebody loses an eye.

A picture's worth

SHE'D WALKED PAST IT hundreds of times, barely giving it a look. But today for some reason Alice stopped on her way up the stairs and took a good long look at the photograph. Her parents, caught in a rare moment of happy ease, looked back at her.

Perhaps it was the unexpected death of an old neighbour. Or the slower passing of an ailing business associate. Maybe the way her grandson walked with a more mature gait. Alice couldn't say why today she was feeling nostalgic, but whatever the reason the frozen faces in the cheap old frame had caught her eye. Taking it from its usual spot, she settled down on the couch with it in her hand and remembered.

It had been a balmy Thanksgiving weekend at the cottage, affording an opportunity for all those outdoor end-of-season chores to be done. Happily. The landscape would have looked different from July and August. Thinner foliage and a lower, slanting sun.

sharon

road

While Alice and her brothers were running around collecting coloured leaves, curled up centipedes and abandoned robins' nests, their parents were mucking around with tools and rope, wheelbarrow and rags. In the picture, the adults were taking a break, sitting on the edge of the low stone patio in their favourite old work clothes.

Her dad was wearing what had once been maroon coloured dress pants in another lifetime. With age they had faded to a rusty beige, the fabric soft as baby's skin and comfortably stretched out of shape. His familiar once-blue sweatshirt with many, many holes gaped at the neck to reveal a t-shirt beneath. No socks and old leather loafers. His hair obviously hadn't seen a comb all weekend and Alice could just see a hint of stubble on his chin. He leaned forward toward the camera, arms resting on knees. As he squinted in the mid-afternoon sun, there was a hint of challenge mixed with a nonchalant, non-committal expression. Alice knew that look.

Beside him sat Alice's mother, much smaller in stature but identically seated. Old fleece pants that may have once been pink had shrunk to well above her ankles, revealing mismatched socks and paint splattered loafers. Her trademark Mexican poncho, faded and threadbare, was flung loosely across her shoulders. A slight breeze must have played with her hair so her face was framed in a softly tousled fashion that looked almost girlish. A total lack of makeup, even lipstick, bespoke a degree of relaxation seldom seen during Alice's childhood. She also crinkled her eyes in the sun but was actually smiling slightly at the person holding the camera. A rare event. Alice now wondered if it was the bottle of beer in her mother's hand that had helped her sink into the pleasure of the sunny autumn day. As usual, a cigarette dangled from both her parents' fingers. Alice could almost smell the acrid smoke curling its way up their hands and into the thickly pungent forest air.

Alice thought of what they would have been doing before their pause and then returning to after. Raking around the cottage to keep down the bugs come spring. Vainly plugging gaps and cracks with steel wool in an effort to thwart the mice. Bringing in the boats. Making a last trip to the dump after burning whatever could be burned. Then there would be a supply of kindling and heaps of firewood carried in and placed by the woodstove. That would see them through the rest of the weekend and what was left would perhaps get someone started if they decided to try coming up over the Christmas holidays. An optimistic hope, considering the basic nature of the cottage but it had happened some years. Alice's father would drain the water. Lastly, before leaving on the holiday Monday, shutters would go up over the windows and just as they walked out the door, the power was shut off and the fridge door left ajar.

But of course the photo showed none of this. That was all stored in her memory. The picture simply opened the storehouse.

Clarifying the Share the Road Project

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Haliburton Highlands Cycling Coalition, I'd like to take the opportunity to clarify the goals and intent of the recent Share the Road campaign.

This campaign was initiated as a result of recommendations made in the 2008 Cycling Master Plan for Haliburton County. When the Ontario Ministry of Transportation made funding available through its Transportation Demand Management program, the County of Haliburton, in partnership with the coalition, Communities in Action Committee, Health Unit and all four municipalities, made a successful application for the Share the Road project. Haliburton County was one of only 10 communities in the province to receive the funding.

The goal of the project was to make the county more cycling-friendly and increase commuter cycling. The project objectives include to:

- increase knowledge in motorists and cyclists about how to safely share the road;
- increase awareness in the general community about sharing the road with cyclists;
- increase cyclists' skills in order to safely share the road.

These objectives were to be achieved through a variety of activities that many community members will be aware of: installation of share the road signs, an extensive public information campaign, promotion and support for the annual Commuter Challenge.

Cycling is becoming more and more recognized as a legitimate form of transportation, for health, environmental and economic reasons. At the recent Ontario Bike Summit in Waterloo, the Minister of Transportation, Jim Bradley, spoke of his government's support for cycling through initiatives like the funding program, review of provincial cycling policies, and changes in provincial planning guidelines to include cycling and active transportation.

The Share the Road project recognizes that both motorists AND cyclists play important roles in making our roads safer for everyone. We hope that the campaign has highlighted some of the legal responsibilities of both groups when on the road, and has also encouraged both to consider how to extend courtesy to each other. We also recognize that attitudes and behaviour do not change overnight. We will continue to make cyclists aware of both their rights and responsibilities as road users, and motorists aware of how to safely interact with cyclists.

No single group can claim sole ownership of our public roadways. As a community of road users, we all play a role in making and keeping our roads safe for everyone.

Duchene brought Avs fans to their feet

ing the retirement of his number 19 to the rafters, then skating with a lit torch and passing it to Matt Duchene. How's that for symbolism?

"No, that second part won't actually happen. But in a symbolic sense it will, when the Avalanche honors its franchise icon before tonight's season opener, then watches its 18-year-old center begin the enormous job of trying to fill Sakic's skates."

NHL.com: "Perhaps the most excited player was Avs rookie Matt Duchene, their first pick in the 2009 Entry Draft. He grew up idolizing Sakic -- and the Avs are counting on the 18-year-old to step into the lineup the way Sakic did a generation ago.

"That Joe Sakic ceremony was one of the most amazing things that I have ever seen in my life," Duchene said. "He almost has an aura that kind of rubs off on guys."

Associated Press: "Taking in the ceremony on the bench was Avalanche rookie Matt Duchene, who was drafted with the third overall pick in June. He grew up with posters of Sakic adorning his walls.

"If his first NHL game wasn't enough excitement, his childhood idol was being honored, too.

"If I think about it, it definitely feels surreal," Duchene said. "Just focus on business. ... I'm not trying to get caught up in boyhood stuff."

Bleacher Report: "Matt Duchene brought the Pepsi Center crowd to their feet a couple of times with his superior stick handling skills, and at one point found himself face to face with Evgeni Nabakov. Even though Duchene didn't score, he did have an assist and logged nearly 15 minutes of ice time in his first professional contest, and considering who they played in the San Jose Sharks, that's impressive."

milehighhockey.com: Matt Duchene didn't get his first goal tonight, but he again had some tremendous shifts including a highlight reel worthy steal followed by a couple of dekes and a shot from his knees. No worries - he'll be scoring before we know it.

National Post: Duchene, the third overall pick in the 2009 entry draft, made a deft dipsy-doodle rush that forced Canucks goalie Roberto Luongo to make a tough save. He also centred a power-play alignment and didn't look out of place with seasoned veterans.

The media spotlight will be focused even more intensely on Duchene now that Don Cherry has announced that Duchene is in the running for the Calder Memorial Trophy. The trophy goes "to the player selected as the most proficient in his first year of competition in the National Hockey League."

Surprise news

Duchene's second game was on Saturday against the Vancouver Canucks. It was supposed to be a doubly exciting game for Haliburton hockey fans who were conflicted about which team to cheer for. It was widely expected that Cody Hodgson, a Haliburton Lake cottager who, like Duchene, first wore a Haliburton Husky hockey jersey, was going to be playing for the Canucks. He'd played a few pre-season games and in spite of a back injury, was working hard to impress the Canucks' coaches.

Last week, however, the Canucks announced that they were sending Hodgson back for another season with the Brampton Battalion.

Meanwhile, Duchene can play up to nine regular season games before the Avalanche decides whether to keep him on for the full season or send him back to the Battalion as well.

A Rewarding Place to Live & Work

"Living here would be better than just visiting!" Those words of encouragement repeated by his friend and colleague Dr. Bob Heyes over several years of locuming in the area, finally brought Dr. Michael Armstrong and his family to Haliburton County to practice family medicine in July 2007. It was not an easy decision to move his family and practice from Cobourg, but one he has not regretted. His family has since grown from three (wife Darlene and son Evan, 4 years), to four (son Graeme was born in 2007). He has found the people of Haliburton County very welcoming and he has enjoyed being able to include a physically active lifestyle into his every day. Dr. Armstrong says, "From a professional perspective, I find it very rewarding to work with the team of skilled family physicians, nurses and other health care professionals in Haliburton Highlands."

HOCKEY

Cody Hodgson seeks second opinion

TERRY KOSHAN

Sun Media

As NHL clubs put the finishing touches on their rosters last week, the Vancouver Canucks gave the Brampton Battalion a large lineup boost.

Centre Cody Hodgson, the Canadian Hockey League player of the year last season, was returned to the struggling Ontario Hockey League club by the Canucks.

"I was surprised by their decision," Battalion director of hockey operations/coach Stan Butler said. "But when you get a player back of that status, it greatly helps our team."

Hodgson suffered a bulging disc in his back during a summer training session, and though he played in six pre-season games for Vancouver, his skating was hampered because of the injury.

However, it's still not clear where Hodgson will be sharpening his skills this winter. On Saturday the Vancouver Sun wrote, "Hodgson's father informed the Ontario League's Brampton Battalion that his son won't report to them until he seeks another opinion about his back, which means the family is unconvinced the Canucks' medical staff adequately

Cody Hodgson's back injury will determine who he plays for this season, NHL or OHL. File photo diagnosed the injury."

Neither Chris Hodgson, the former MPP for Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock, nor his son's agent would comment on the report.

In 53 games for the Battalion last year, Hodgson — the Canucks' first-round pick, 10th overall in 2008 — had 43 goals and 49 assists. The 19-year-old was an integral force in Canada's gold-medal victory at the world junior last winter, leading the tournament in scoring, and he is the odds-on favourite to be Canada's captain at the 2010 world junior in Saskatchewan.

The Battalion went to the OHL final last spring for the first time in team history, but sits last in the OHL with three losses in three games and has scored just four goals. If healthy, Hodgson should dominate the OHL. Butler had not talked to Hodgson and it was unclear when Hodgson, a Haliburton Lake cottager, would make his debut for the Battalion.

SENIORS AND JUNIORS VS CAMPBELLFORD

Winning start to Red Hawk football season

KATRINA CHVEDUKAS

HHSS Co-op Student

September 30 was a victorious day for the Haliburton Red Hawks who won their home opener game against the Campbellford Flames.

With Drew Paul scoring two touchdowns, Tyler Wood one touchdown and Greg Baumgartner three kicks, the senior football team celebrated a 21-10 win over Campbellford. Though Luke Watson was injured in the starting quarter of the game he was soon back out in the field and playing.

For the juniors, Andrew Murray and Damon Flatman each contributed a touchdown, leading them to a 16-6 victory against the junior Campbellford team. Denver Smith got a two-point conversion and the team got a touch back. Defensive stars go to Jonah Stonehouse and Mark Dobie. Big plays were made by Austin Lloyd, Keegan Kyle and Cole Rowden.

The Red Hawks's next game is Thursday, October 8 against Kenner Collegiate in Peterborough. It's hoped they'll bring us home another victory and take us another step closer to Kawarthas.

JENN WATT/Echo

If Wednesday's match against Campbellford is anything to go by, the senior Haliburton Highlands Secondary School football team is well on its way to a Kawartha championship.

HHSS Red Hawks sports briefs

The following are brief sports reports from Haliburton Highlands Secondary School, compiled by Judi Paul's class.

- The senior boys soccer team shut out the league-leading I.E. Weldon Wildcats, earning a 0-0 tie. Spectacular goaltending from Adam VanNood and strong defence from Jesse Walker. They were also defeated 4-2 by LCVI. Goals were scored by Jeff Kraft and Jesse Lefebvre.

- The junior boys soccer team was defeated by I.E. Weldon. Solid performances by Kieren Poropat and Greg Foster. They defeated LCVI by a score of 3-2, with goals from Tanner Ballantyne, Matt Kim and Tanner Hamilton. Great goaltending came from Mike Mazara, with solid defence from Taylor Chambers, Bin Chun and Tyler Warham.

- The junior girls basketball team was defeated 32-15 by Brock. Players of the game were Jessica Rider, Tessa Iles and Lauren Snelgrove.

- The varsity field hockey team defeated Crestwood 2-0. Scoring for Haliburton were Kara Pogue and Megan McDuff.

- The junior girls field hockey team defeated Crestwood by a score of 3-

1. Scoring for Haliburton were Sandy Griffith (2) and Nicole Jennings.

- The junior girls basketball team was defeated by I.E. Weldon. Players of the game are Jessica Rider, Bailey Walker, and Megan LaPierre.

- The golf team failed to advance to COSSA; however, Rob Lewis finished fourth to qualify as an individual.

- The senior girls basketball team played their best game of the season, but were unable to defeat I.E. Weldon.

After 27 days on the road visiting golf courses Charlie Teljeur and Wayde Greer have 60 hours of film footage to create their TV pilot program.

HIGHWAYS TO FAIRWAYS

Golfing duo back in Highlands

MATT JAMES

Staff Reporter

After visiting six golf courses in 27 days and meeting a slew of amazing people across North America, the creators of Highways to Fairways have now started to sort through more than 60 hours of footage for a reality TV pilot program that they'll soon pitch to various television networks.

From September 1 to 27, Haliburton County's Charlie Teljeur and Wayde Greer, along with cameraman Jason Campbell, packed themselves into a van "to roam the North American countryside in search of fun, intrigue, adventure and some really great games of golf," as their website states.

And that's exactly what they found. But just how did the journey go with three grown men pack into one smallish van? Drenched with sarcasm Teljeur says, "It was a terrible trip. I hated every minute of it."

In reality, Highways to Fairways couldn't have gone much better — and that means that, par for the course of a reality television show, sometimes things went badly.

In Angola, Indiana they heard a slight clunking noise coming from bowels of the van that became more considerable with each kilometre. One of them, Greer perhaps, said they were about to breakdown.

And they did.

"We all sort of had this one moment where we started grinning," said Teljeur.

This is reality TV. This is so cool.

That day they ended up golfing in Angola. It was an unplanned stop but one they were all appreciative of, especially after the first couple days of taping.

"That first stop got all the bugs out of doing this whole thing," said Teljeur.

Prior to this trip (and even after) did Greer or Teljeur in any way, shape, or form consider themselves actors?

"I was terrible," admits Teljeur. "I was acting in front of the camera and I couldn't get timing. I was pathetic."

"We were almost wondering what the hell we were doing out there," Greer adds.

But by the time they rolled into Indianapolis they'd found their stride and the dynamic between them worked well. Part of this success, they said, was because they were all able to communicate openly for the good of the project.

"If we can't take advice from each other then the project's done," said Greer.

Fore the fun of it

The trio travelled through Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, and Washington. In Canada they rolled through the provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

"With all of the missed off-ramps we were definitely over 10,000 kilometres" said Teljeur.

Highlights of the trip were plenty and one that stood out for Greer occurred in the foyer of a hotel in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. Upon entering the hotel a bell boy approached and recognized the three as "those guys from the newspaper."

With no issues of the Haliburton County Echo within 4,000 kilometres, Greer had to inquire.

"It turns out the local paper had done a story on us without us even knowing," he said.

Well, it wasn't that much of a surprise; the guys were diligent in spreading the word. They sent press releases of their arrival and purpose to every medium possible.

To their delight, Highways to Fairways was picking up steam.

While the show's name, High- ways to Fairways, and tagline "Where man's insatiable quest for travel meets his unquenchable thirst for par," is all about some of the coolest public golf courses in North America it was surprising to hear how much golf they didn't play.

"We never could get a full game in," said Teljeur. "It's really corny to say but the golf gets in the way."

The magic caught on film wasn't their reaction to the golf courses but the reaction of everyone they met along the way.

"The best footage is when we talk to people on the course," said Teljeur.

The most they ever golfed was 17 holes, which happened once.

The rest of the time they were simply talking to people about the show.

"We'd be on the course and someone would say 'Oh you're filming. What's going on?' So you'd talk for 20 minutes; [meanwhile] six other groups play through so you're [constantly] promoting," said Teljeur.

So what's next?

The footage is merely an introduction to Highways to Fairways.

Once the pilot is polished they'll be pitching the show to a number of interested television networks that they hope will either buy the show or pick it up — either would result in more awesome road trips across North America.

The pilot should be completed by mid November to early December and if all goes well the H-to-F crew could be back on the road, this time for just three weeks, in January or February.

While the boys got sponsors, including support from the Haliburton County Development Corporation, for the initial tour they're still open to people helping them out with connections or resources that might open new doors for the show's success.

"If and when we get a network that says yes, then we have to be ready to hit the road right away," said Greer.

And the last thing they want is to let the buzz they've created fizzle — a buzz they've created by simply doing their own thing.

Stay tuned for a future pilot party celebration date and if you think you could help the boys in their journey they can be reached by email by any one of their first names @highwaystofairways.com or by phone toll free at 1-888-410-2582.

The second annual Fall Festival put on by the Business Improvement Area is a great way to celebrate fall and boost the local economy.

On Saturday Haliburton Village was packed with people enjoying the festivities. Kennedy McCracken guessed the closest combined weight (1,207 lbs.) of a giant pumpkin and watermelon within three pounds.

In Head Lake, Park DJ Wild Willy cranked out the tunes as hundreds perused more than 30 antique and classic cars.

Before things got underway Haliburton United Church served up a pancake breakfast and for lunch volunteers from the Bridge Youth Centre raised approximately $140 from a corn roast in front of V&S.

BIA chair Bob Park and Fall Festival committee chair Andy Glecoff were pleased the rain held off and the sun came out and hope everyone had a great time.

Parents and kids gathered for a number of afternoon shows put on by Mary Lambert and Friends on Saturday.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK OCT. 4-10

During Fire Prevention Week, we'd like to take a moment to thank our local firefighters for their hard work, bravery and dedication to saving lives. Their tireless efforts make our community a safer place to live. This week, show your appreciation by learning how you can help yourself, your family and our volunteer firefighters through fire prevention.

FIRE SAFETY TIPS

Get everyone in your household together tonight and practice these safety tips because it is important that you take the appropriate and preventative measures.

YOU MUST HAVE AN ESCAPE PLAN

Practice your plan with all members of your family. When you practice your escape plan try covering your mouth and crawling on the floor.

EVERY ROOM MUST HAVE AN EXIT

If your bedroom is on the second floor make sure there is a ladder that is easy to attach to the window.

ONCE OUTSIDE, STAY OUTSIDE

Do not re-enter the house under any circumstance. If someone is still inside, inform the firefighters.

CHECK YOUR SMOKE DETECTORS REGULARLY

Make it a habit to check your smoke detectors monthly, mark it on your calendar or check on the same day each month. Keep extra batteries on hand. Make sure to install a fire detector on every level of your home – especially near the sleeping areas. When checking your smoke detectors make sure that everyone can hear the smoke alarms from all areas of your home. NEVER REMOVE THE BATTERIES FROM YOUR SMOKE DETECTOR, unless to change them.

For the second time in as many years Ellinor Proctor of Arizona, far right, and her daughter Kim Breese of Guelph, have travelled to Haliburton County specifically for the Studio Tour. This year they made sure to visit Rose Pearson's studio.

FALL IN LOVE WITH ART

Studios open doors to visitors

Story and photos by Matt James

Early feedback from artists and visitors of the 22nd annual Haliburton County Studio Tour has been very positive, says first-year tour organizer Thom Lambert.

"It sounds like it's been an incredibly busy weekend," said Lambert on Sunday after speaking with approximately eight different studio artists.

He estimates more than 1,600 people visited the 26 studios featuring 36 different artists throughout the county over the weekend.

Lambert says the studio tour is so popular because it is what it says it is – a studio tour. "It's not an art sale," he said. "Even if you're not buying, you should be able to have a great time on the tour."

Throughout the tour artists are on hand to meet and greet the hundreds who come to see their work.

See page 25 for more photos of the Studio Tour

Willow Beach resident Susan Armstrong studies a piece inside the Haliburton studio of Jane Selbie. Armstrong, a veteran of the Haliburton County Studio Tour, says, "The artists are fantastic." We'll be sure to pass that along.

Some eye-catching jewelry inside the Skyline Park Road studio of Barbara-Joy Peel has the attention of brother and sister, Nick Mensink of Whitby and Veronica Kolkman of Moncton.

Hundreds of people strolled in and out of more than 26 studios featuring 36 different artists this past weekend for the 22nd annual Haliburton County Studio Tour.

Chris Hughes of St. Cathrines is an eight-year veteran of the Haliburton County Studio Tour. Inside the Skyline Park Road studio of potter/jeweler Barbara-Joy Peel she spots a piece that catches her eye.

16-year-old Eagle Lake cottager Christy Scott (of Toronto) was having fun with her girlfriends on Saturday trying on some bling at the Cane Lane studio of Susan and Todd Ellis.

This painting by Rose Pearson is colourful, vibrant and was most likely created with a certain meaning and a message in mind. But art is subjective and that's why art and the Haliburton County Studio Tour will forever be popular amongst the thousands who visit each year.

Splitting her time between her home in Toronto and at the cottager on Cranberry Lake, Marilyn Stafford checks out the detailed work of Kevin Dunlop, a.k.a. The Marquetry Man.

HHHSF AGM

Hospital foundation continues to reach for future

MATT JAMES

Staff Reporter

After attending the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation's 13th annual general meeting one word comes to mind to describe the state of the organization — healthy.

Gathered inside the hospital's boardroom on September 21 were the hospital's board members, staff and a number of guests including Jeff West of McColl Turner, the foundation's auditor.

With a year-end balance of $177,278 it would seem as though it was an amazing year compared to last year's year-end balance of $42,204. However, executive director Dale Walker says "we're holding some of this [money] for HHHS."

In fact $140,887 of this year's balance is still on the books for the PACS system, which has already been paid for. "It's a huge regional project and that money hasn't been expended yet and that's why we're holding the cash," said Walker.

Reaching for the future

Walker began her report of the past fiscal year (March 2008-March 2009) by talking about the $2.5 million

Reach For The Future fundraising campaign that began in June 2007.

The campaign had two major fundraising priorities; the first was to bring the hospitals' X-ray machines up to speed by replacing the old film X-rays with a Picture Archiving Communications System, or PACS.

It used to take up to three days to receive X-ray information; now it takes mere minutes as digital images are automatically sent to Peterborough and Lindsay hospitals.

In just 19 months $731,298 was raised and the PACS systems for Haliburton and Minden hospitals were officially paid off in February 2009.

The second priority was ceiling lifts, a $361,000 project that has raised $161,000 to date.

After that, focus turns to new bathtubs and beds as well as a $1.2 million project for electronic health records.

Putting the fun in fundraiser

So how is so much money raised in so little time? It's because the foundation is a well-oiled machine with a dedicated group of volunteers who work hard to put on fun fundraising events the community can't help but support.

Walker's report covered the number of community event fundraisers over the past fiscal year with the Rotary Club of Minden's Art in the Village, Todd's Independent curling bonspiel, the ladies of Zion United Church tea, the 4X4 Trailfest, tax inserts, and a partnership with BMO and MasterCard just to name a few.

'Radiothon went above and beyond what we ever thought would happen'

The foundation's annual programs such as the Christmas campaign, HHHSF newsletter, patient letters, bear program, Rotary Golf Classic, fall poker ride, gala and radiothon also help bring in the required cash.

"The radiothon went above and beyond what we ever thought would happen," said Walker at the AGM.

None of the events or projects would be possible without the volunteers and staff who helped run them and Walker thanked them profusely.

In turn, HHHSF chair Peter Oyler took the time to recognize Walker and outgoing administrative assistant Ashleigh McDonald.

HHHS president and CEO Paul Rosebush spoke of the work the foundation supports.

"In a nutshell that was 28,000 visits to the emergency room, 450 patients with an average stay of about 10 days each, 12,000 X-rays, 350 community mental health clients, approximately 400 physio patients and a vibrant diabetes management program that supports hundreds of people across the county," Rosebush said.

The foundation also supports 92 long-term care residents and 30 seniors in the supportive housing program.

"All of this takes place in two buildings in two communities that combine to contribute to our vision of one strong health-care team," said Rosebush. "Without the generous support of the HHHS Foundation and our community, HHHS would not be in the enviable position that we are to deliver responsive, high quality, compassionate care throughout our many core and community services."

Referring to the healthcare debate in the U.S., Rosebush says Canada and Haliburton made up their mind long ago about the importance of health care.

Continuing that trend Rosebush says recent changes to the hospital's leadership structure in both senior management as well as the addition of board of directors, combined with the already strong and talented core of established board members, have helped move the corporation forward.

The corporation also energetically pursued better stakeholder relations.

"We recognize that we needed to do better and we needed to recognize that the community are the owners of HHHS," said Rosebush.

With that the corporation has reached out and established contact, dialogue and partnerships across Haliburton County that will help the hospitals respond better to the needs of the community.

Challenges and successes

One of the immediate challenges is the decrease in health-care subsidies, which will create significant pressures on programs and staff.

The corporation will also need to work with municipal leaders to address the unfunded service liabilities from non-urgent patient transportation and how the hospitals can cope with growing utility costs.

Defining the hospitals' role within a Local Health Integration Network structure will also be a challenge.

Conversely, the organization's successes in the past year are many, says Rosebush.

The establishment of an ethics committee, a revamped emergency evacuation plans and re-accreditation with Accreditation Canada are all successes.

The HHHS's balanced budgets in community programs gives it one of the best overall financial results in Central East LHIN. Better IT development for support staff and operations are also helpful.

Since 1998 the HHHSF has raised $7.9 million for the county's health-care facilities.

NEW CLUB MAY FORM

Vietnamese martial arts may be taught

After spending many years abroad, primarily in Vietnam, Ernest Pemmann has moved to Haliburton and is interested in introducing his passion for the martial arts to his fellow Haliburtonians.

Vo Thuat Co Truyen is a comprehensive 18-level system encompassing a number of traditional martial arts styles. Pemmann has taken the instructors' examination and is currently ranked as a Huan Luyen Viên (coach) at level 15.

If enough people are interested, he'd be starting a program based on the program taught by my Vietnamese master, Linh Ho Tuan (who is also Head Coach of the Vo Thuat Co Truyen Competition Team of Lam Dong Province, Vietnam).

It includes material from the following Kung Fu styles:

- Vo Co Truyen Binh Dinh (Traditional Martial Arts of Binh Dinh Province, Vietnam)

- Vo Lam Chanh Tong (Original Martial Arts; Origin: Shaolin Kung Fu, China)

- Tan Khan Ba Tra School of Vo Co Truyen (Ho Chi Minh City, aka Saigon, Vietnam)

For some general information on Vietnamese martial arts go to the Wikipedia site on the history of Vietnamese martial arts.

If interested, please call Pemmann at 457-4902 or ernest.pemmann@gmail.com.

On Thanksgiving weekend, Haliburton Highlands Secondary School gave thanks for some of its finest students at the annual honours and awards ceremony.

The Haliburton County Echo and Minden Times will be providing full coverage of the awards.

However, because of press deadlines for the holiday weekend, the coverage will be in the Echo of October 20 and the Times of October 21.

We appreciate your patience.

SO YOU THINK YOU CAN RECYCLE

TAKE THE RECYCLING CHALLENGE!

TRUE OR FALSE?

Paint cans, aerosol cans and propane canisters should never go in your blue box for recycling, even if empty.

Answer: TRUE. Aerosol cans and propane canisters are always considered hazardous and should be turned in at a Household Hazardous Waste event. Paint cans that are EMPTY, DRY, and with the LID REMOVED may be left in the scrap metal pile; check with your landfill attendant first. The last Household Hazardous Waste event for Algonquin Highlands residents will be held on Saturday, October 10th, from 1-5 p.m., at the Maple Lake Landfill. Landfill User ID cards must be shown.

For more information on recycling in Algonquin Highlands, contact:

■ ART HIVE

Erin Lynch's jewelry is twisted

Twisted, September 9 to 22 at The Art Hive features jewelry artisan Erin Lynch's most recent works. Twisted concludes the 2009 Hand of the Maker series at The Art Hive.

Found objects continue to be a source of inspiration to Lynch. At first glance pieces appear solely decorative, but upon a closer examination reveal unusual and unexpected objects woven together with silver to create one-of-a-kind art pieces.

Lynch has been making jewelry for 10 years. Growing up in Haliburton she went onto study journalism at Ryerson Polytechnic University. An extensive traveller, Erin developed a keen interest in ornamentation. She began making jewelry to fuel her adventures. The call of the trees and the sound of the lakes brought her back to the Highlands. Hobby turned to business in 2002 when her son was an infant.

For many years Lynch juggled freelance writing and jewelry making to be at home with her son.

The artisan has taken numerous courses at George Brown and the Haliburton School of the Arts. Today she teaches at Canadore College, Sir Sandford Fleming College's continuing education program, Haliburton School of the Arts and galleries and studios throughout Ontario. Her passion for jewelry and creative expression is infectious.

Lynch works predominantly in silver wire but recently lit the torch and began creating soldered jewelry. Ethnic and organic, Lynch's jewelry entices the eye and fuels the spirit.

The annual Hand of the Maker series gives artists from The Maple Lake Artisans Collective an opportunity to showcase their work.

Lynch is a resident artist and founding member of The Art Hive where her studio, Bella's Bazaar is located.

Opening reception for Twisted is October 9 at 7 p.m. at The Art Hive, 10239 Hwy 118. For more information call 754-0021.

Haliburton Real Easy Ryders ends season with barbecue today at Guilford Centre

community news

west guilford

Eleanor Cooper
754-2278

The Haliburton Real Easy Ryders season is over for the cyclists for the year. About 50 people participate in this weekly event which begins in May and goes to the first week in October.

September 29th's ride took them from Heron Landing Road to Eagle Lake returning for picnic lunch at Bert and Jan Kennedy's. Wind-up happens in the form of a barbecue on October 6 at the Guilford Centre.

Farewell to Fred and Marilyn Carter, faithful members of Maple Lake United Church as they move to Beaverton, Ontario. A farewell supper was held at the church on Sunday, September 27 in their honour. The congregation will miss them at the monthly hymn sings and potlucks as well as at regular services and meetings. Farewell also to Don and Joy Nickell who bid a fond farewell in turn to the many friends and acquaintances they've known over their 22 years at Coleman Lake. Their move happens on October 7 from their Haliburton home to Paris, Ontario.

Pat Barry reports that her aunt, Sheila Holmes, and daughter Paula, enjoyed a 10-day holiday at the Jeff and Pat Barry home in September. A trip to Algonquin Park was part of the visitors' itinerary.

Canoe FM volunteers are always welcome to handle the office phone during the day. An hour or two is appreciated, probably on a weekly basis. Call 457-9603 if you can help.

Euchre scores for September 29th at the centre: High - Norma Geddis and Bill Matthews;

Low- George Milne and Harold Ross; Most lone hands- Kay Morrison and Nick Biljetina.

Present at the Centre's Board meeting on September 28th were: Carol Stamp, Sandy Luck, Janis Parker, Lynn Morrison, Tanya Sisson, Sara Burtch, Eleanor Cooper, Perry and Kay Morrison.

Come out for annual Ag Fair Society supper

Proceeds from the October 10th's awards and dinner help support next year's fair

community news

wilberforce

Hilda Clark
448-2018

Thanksgiving weekend is a most welcome celebration as summer fades and the amazing autumn colours cheer our days. Though being thankful is a year-long, lifelong part of living, it is good that this special time is designated to remind us of all for which we can be thankful.

Churches in the area welcome you to their Thanksgiving services; most are on Sunday, October 11.

A part of the weekend that many anticipate is the annual Agricultural Fair Society's supper at the Lloyd Watson Centre. It's on Saturday, October 10. The supper begins at 5 p.m. following the 4:30 awards presentations to those who were winners at this year's fair. For a delicious turkey dinner topped off with homemade pie adults pay $12. Children under 12 dine for $5 while preschoolers eat free. Always a delicious hearty meal and the proceeds support the Wilberforce Fair.

An open house was held at the Wilberforce School last week. It provided a fine opportunity for families of students and the staff to get acquainted or reacquainted in a less formal situation than at interview and report card times. All the best to students and staff for a good year.

Many have already signed a petition that concerns the Wilberforce post office. A moratorium on post office closures was imposed by the Liberal government in 1994. The federal government is presently considering ending that current moratorium on post office closures. The petition reminds the government of the key role our public post offices play in our social and economic life by providing the infrastructure that healthy communities need to thrive and businesses need to grow. It calls on the Government of Canada to maintain the moratorium on post office closures and withdraw the legislation to legalize remailers and to maintain, expand and improve postal services.

Do support our Post Office. Join all the others and sign this petition. We need a full service post office in this community.

Happy Thanksgiving to all.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC MEETING TO INFORM THE PUBLIC OF AN OFFICIAL PLAN REVIEW AND UPDATE

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the Council for The Corporation of the Municipality of Highlands East will be holding a public meeting under Section 17 and 26 of the Planning Act, R.S.O. 1990, C.P. 13 as amended, to inform the public of the Municipality's intent to review and update its Official Plan.

A public meeting is being held in accordance with the requirements of the Planning Act to provide members of the community with an opportunity to learn more about the Official Plan Update and to directly provide comments on the Official Plan to Council. This will be the first public meeting of Council where changes to the current Official Plan will be discussed, however there will be other opportunities in this process to provide comments and input.

DATE AND LOCATION OF PUBLIC MEETING

Date: Tuesday, November 10, 2009
Time: 6:30 pm
Location: Lloyd Watson Community Centre, Wilberforce, Ontario

DETAILS OF THE OFFICIAL PLAN REVIEW AND UPDATE

The current Official Plan was approved by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing on December 7, 2004. In accordance with Provincial law, the Municipality is required to hold a public meeting on or prior to the 5 year anniversary of the Official Plan and decide if the Official Plan requires changes to reflect current issues and legislation.

The following is a brief summary of current initiatives and issues that may precipitate changes to the Official Plan for the Municipality of Highlands East:

- The Province of Ontario released a new Provincial Policy Statement subsequent to the approval of the current Highlands East Official Plan. The Provincial Policy Statement is the primary policy document for land use planning in Ontario and local planning documents and planning decisions are to be "consistent with" this document.
- The Province of Ontario has recently approved two major amendments to the Planning Act: Bill 26 and Bill 51. This new legislation creates new requirements with respect to the processing of applications and also provides Municipalities with new regulatory measures that may be used in the administration of planning approvals.
- The County of Haliburton has recently undertaken an Official Plan Review and this draft amendment is now available for public review.
- The Municipality of Highlands East has acquired geo-referenced base mapping from the County of Haliburton and will incorporate this new mapping with the Official Plan.

The draft Official Plan will not be adopted by Council at this public meeting. Rather, comments provided at this meeting will be considered by Council in the preparation of an amending document. If Council for the Municipality of Highlands East adopts the Official Plan, the document will be forwarded to the County of Haliburton for approval as the County is the approval authority for Official Plans.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION AND KEY MAP

There is no key map provided as the Official Plan Update is applicable to all land within the corporate boundaries of the Municipality of Highlands East, with the exception of Crown land.

The purpose of this meeting is to ensure that sufficient information is made available to enable the public to generally understand the Official Plan Review process and planning issues that need to be considered by Council. Any person who attends the meeting shall be afforded an opportunity to make representations in respect of the applications. If you cannot attend this meeting, written submissions will be accepted by Council provided they are dated and signed.

If you wish to be notified of the decision of the Council for the Corporation of the Municipality of Highlands East in respect to the proposed Official Plan you must submit a written request (with forwarding addresses) to the Clerk of the Municipality of Highlands East. If you have questions with respect to the current Official Plan or the Official Plan Review process, please contact Chris Jones MCIP, RPP, (Meridian Planning Consultants) at (705) 737-4512 x 224 or chris@meridianplan.ca.

The existing Official Plan is available to the public for inspection at the Municipality of Highlands East Municipal Office located at County Road 648, Wilberforce, Ontario on Monday to Friday, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. or by calling Ms. Irene Cook at (705) 448-2981. The existing Official Plan and associated mapping are also available on line at www.HighlandsEast.ca.

A Thank You for the Late Dorothy Baker

There are so many to thank.

First, I would like to thank Harry Henry for being my rock during mom's illness, passing and for his continued support.

To Dwaine Lloyd and his staff at the Haliburton Community Funeral Home, your caring, support and direction went above and beyond, as usual.

I can not say enough to thank Ruth, Les and Luke Schell. Ruth and Les for the love and Luke for his exceptional photo preparation.

To Laurie, Vicki and Barb for their many hours of listening and understanding.

Murray Fearrey and Jim Frost for their dedications and laughter at a very difficult time.

Fraser MacDonald for his piping.
Mom loved the pipes

Anya Baker for her beautiful violin piece, Scotty Morrison, Jim Frost, Murray Fearrey, Andy Campbell, Bob Nichol, Don Popple and Peter Curry. It was greatly appreciated.

The Haliburton Highland Games representation, when's the first meeting!!

Royal Canadian Legion Branch 129 for their dedication during the service and the Ladies Auxillary for the luncheon.

Campbell's Garden and Gifts and Country Rose for the beautiful arrangements.

The staff at both the Haliburton Hospital and Toronto General Hospital.

Finally, to the community for your support, caring and kind words.

Mom will love and appreciate your support forever.
She will be missed.

"Jennifer"

Plant a tree... Make a difference

Sun Media and Canoe.ca in partnership with Trees Ontario and Funeral Directors across Ontario will be planting a tree in memory of every deceased loved one whose passing is published in this newspaper.

Trees are the natural filters of the air we breathe and the water we drink. They are home to countless animals, and they help to combat greenhouse effects. Trees Ontario is a not-for-profit organization of experts from science, forestry, government, community groups and the business world that plants trees and forests throughout Ontario.

Many times we have been in disbelief, many times we have asked "Why?"
and many tears we have cried.
Every day in some small way we see her in the lives of her precious children Tannis and Trevin.
So this Thanksgiving, we will be thankful for many things. We will celebrate Crystal's life; her tender smile, her genuine compassion, her sweet spirit. We will pursue a life for her family filled with love and happiness knowing that's what she would want us to do.
Trusting that she is in God's presence and that we will be together again.

Forever in our hearts,
Uncle Bob, Aunt Robin, Alana
and Nathan

In memoriam

Nicholls, Roy: In loving memory of my dad who passed away October 5, 2003

A part of my heart
He took with him
But his love he left me to keep
So we will never Really be parted
The bond between us
Is too deep

Announcements

In memory of mommy, daughter, sister
Crystal Lee Bain
 who went home to be with Jesus on October 12, 2008.

Trevin is going to be 1 on October 6. He looks and acts just like you. He is walking around furniture, standing alone (when he doesn't think about it) and saying a few words. He is such a good baby. He is so sweet just like his mom. We are so blessed to have him. The only thing there's someone missing, his mum mum. I show him your picture everyday. I say where's mum mum? He looks up at your picture and I tell him you have gone to heaven. It hurts so much. The pain is unbearable.

Tannis is 8 now. She is so beautiful inside and out. She loves Trevin so much and is such a little mother to him. She has done so many special things this past year. She has had so many fun playdates with her friends. A great number of caring people have surrounded her with love and been so good to her, keeping her busy which is really important to her. Her confidence is growing on a daily basis. She has sent hundreds of prayers to you by lighting candles and blowing them up to you. She sent her Birthday balloons to heaven so you could enjoy them too. She misses you constantly. We talk all the time about all the special hugs and kisses and everything you did together. Bed times are hard because she thinks a lot when things are quiet. She has been writing her thoughts in a journal which is a good way for her to express herself. She has a very special friend Diane who helps her sort things out. We all wish you were here. Every celebration and family gathering has felt so empty. We have had an amazing support system. God has sent the right people at the right time. His timing is perfect. Angels do walk here on earth. They have been sent in legions. We know the effort it takes to carry on and couldn't imagine how we would have coped or gotten through this past year without the prayers, and help from family and friends. It has been a team effort. We all have the same goal; to do our very best that we can humanly do. The children are a testament that we are doing just that.

A part of me refuses to accept that you are not coming back. Someone says "mom" and my heart starts to pound. I find myself listening for you when I go to bed. I wake up and I think it is not possible that you are gone. I've got on the phone a hundred times to ask you something but there is no one to answer my call. I hear you over and over telling me just let it go, you can do it. You were such a good person, loving, kind, giving, compassionate and a problem solver. You made such a huge impact on so many people's lives. They did a beautiful tribute at Tannis's school for you, to honour all the volunteering you did. I have had so many, help us try to cope the best we can. I can't begin to thank each person in case I would miss someone. Please know that we are eternally grateful. We are blessed to live in this community. The generosity of so many has helped tremendously to carry the load. The thoughtful deeds, kind words and actions by literally hundreds of people continue to amaze me. I listen to Sisys song all the time. It causes the tears to flow but also confirms that I know you are ok. I love you my precious angel. Now until we are together again.

Love mom

Truly a living angel on earth
 And now our guardian angel always with us.
 What a beautiful and wonderful legacy you have left.
 Now, always and forever proud to be your dad.
 I love you Crystal

Hi my name is tannis
 my momshqmeijcrystal
 she was avery smart
 and a beautiful woman.
 After 7 years of my birth
 my mom had a baby boy named trevlin. After 6 days my mom passed away. We miss her very much. But atleast i have my baby brother
 to keep me happy.
 I wear your blue night

2ND MORTGAGE AN OPTION

QUESTION: During the early 80's, a second mortgage was almost a necessity in selling a home. Since the mortgage market has stabilized, should today's seller forget about offering a second mortgage to the buyer?

ANSWER: Not in all circumstances. If you expect to receive a lot more money from the sale than you'll need to purchase your new home, a second mortgage can be an excellent financial move. It can provide a secure investment yielding a higher return than most other investments. In addition, however, the lower downpayment required should increase the number of qualified buyers and make your home somewhat easier to sell.

SECOND MORTGAGES are not a necessity, but still may be a good investment for the seller.

Save receipts for a tax credit

By MP Barry Devolin

Cooler weather has people thinking of fall projects around the house. It could also be that the introduction of the HRTC has convinced many people with home improvements in mind to act now to take advantage of this federal income tax break.

The HRTC provides a 15 per cent income tax credit on eligible home renovation expenditures for work performed or goods acquired after January 27, 2009 and before February 1, 2010. This means that every home owner is eligible for home improvements that will have a lasting impact.

The credit may be claimed on eligible expenditures exceeding $1,000, but no more than $10,000. The HRTC will be family-based, generally meaning an individual, and his/her spouse or common-law partner. Family members will also be able to share the credit amongst themselves, but the credit can not be applied to income properties.

Costs associated with such projects will be eligible for the HRTC, including permits, professional services, equipment rentals and incidental expenses.

Routine repairs and maintenance normally performed annually or on a more frequent basis will not qualify for the credit. Individuals will need to keep receipts for expenditures and may claim the HRTC when filing their income tax returns for 2009.

Some of the eligible expenditures include:

- renovating a kitchen, bathroom or basement;
- new carpet or hardwood floors;
- a new furnace or water heater, or;
- painting the interior or exterior of a house.

Some of the ineligible expenditures include:

- purchase of furniture and appliances;
- purchase of tools;
- carpet cleaning, or;
- maintenance contracts (e.g. furnace cleaning, snow removal, lawn care etc).

The HRTC will complement support provided by the Government to Canadians to undertake energy-saving improvements to their homes. EcoEnergy retrofit grants will not reduce the value of claims made under the HRTC. Eligible renovation expenditures claimed under the Medical Expense Tax Credit may also be claimed.

By keeping the rules governing this program as simple as possible, every Canadian home owner will be able to take advantage of this stimulus package and help to get our economy back on track.

October is Fire Safety Month

Fire extinguisher safety tip

Ensure that every member of the family knows the location of the fire extinguishers in your home as well as how to use the unit. Fight fires with the PASS system:

- Pull the pin
- Aim low – point the unit at the base of the fire
- Squeeze the lever
- Sweep from side to side
- Make sure your unit is fully charged by regularly checking the gauge.

Home energy savings 101

Many homeowners can speak about how they have helped save energy in their home by installing a programmable thermostat or by switching to low-energy lightbulbs.

But when asked about the amount of insulation they have in their home, chances are, they may not have much to say.

But understanding insulation is important because it can significantly contribute to a home's energy efficiency, depending on how much insulation is installed. According to Michael Macey, Insulation Expert at Owens Corning, the attic is one area in particular that plays an important role in helping to save energy.

Here are a few facts that may help improve your understanding of how attics contribute to a home's energy savings, as well as how homeowners can reap the many benefits that come along with re-insulating the attic:

Did you know?

- A 15 inch layer of PINK FIBERGLAS batt insulation on your attic floor is equal to an R-value of R-50. R-value is the measurement of a material's thermal resistance, so the higher the R-value, the better the insulating power.

- An attic insulated to the recommended insulating standard of R-50 can help save homeowners up to 28 per cent on their energy costs* every year, year after year.

- An attic insulated to R-50 can help save a half-ton of greenhouse gas emissions annually.

- Re-insulating the attic is a project that qualifies under the Home Renovation Tax Credit (HRTC) program, which offers a non-refundable tax credit of up to $1,350 or 15 per cent of your total renovation costs. Visit www.actionplan.gc.ca for more information.

- Up to $750 in government grants can be provided under the ecoENERGY Retrofit program when you

Q: Can wood conduct electricity?

Yes! Contrary to a number of popular beliefs, natural wood is often a conductor. The sap flowing through tree branches enhances the conductivity of wood. Likewise, rain and snow penetrate the wood of decks and ladders, which, in turn become conductors. Metal is an excellent conductor of electricity and is often imbedded in wood ladders for structural purposes, again increasing their conductivity. Although wood can be a good insulator, it must be treated and maintained under certain specific conditions. That is why wood is no longer allowed to be used as insulation. - News Canada

Chimney sweep clears the air

By Ian Myers

I know that winter and the need for wood stoves and fireplaces seem a long way off but, as a chimney sweep, let's just say "I see things".

On a daily basis, there are a couple of comments I find myself repeating over and over. It bothers me to the point that I feel it very important to get these points out to the general public - for basic safety and long-term personal health to wood-burning consumers.

If you have any modern, EPA, certified wood burning appliance and you have any of these conditions there is something not right with the unit itself or the installation and it should definitely be checked and swept by a qualified WETT certified chimney sweep. This applies also to non-EPA burners. These symptoms are especially concerning with a newer unit.

Things to look for:

- You often smell smoke
- There are soot stains around doors, blower outlets etc.
- There is often a layer of soot on the furniture (however slight)
- It is very difficult to start a fire
- Opening the door always brings a puff of smoke into the room
- And, a big one, the glass is always dirty, or dirty on one side of glass only

I cannot stress this next point enough: Aside from opening the door too quickly, you should never smell smoke in your house!

Take a minute to explain your concern to your chimney sweep. It is their job to find the source and fix these problems.

Here are some simple (not always) things I find wrong every day:

- Fireplace Inserts - #1, separated liner
- Masonry fireplace with steel insert - rust perforations of steel
- Factory built fireplace - #1 fresh-air intake blocked by spiders!
- EPA wood stove or insert - bricks in the wrong place

I also find that many consumers, especially those who have just purchased their appliance, do not understand how to operate them. It's just like having a car that has low tire pressure or in need of a tune up. The energy and money wasted is staggering.

It is a small investment to have a chimney sweep help you with your stove operation. We are more than happy to give you tips.

In many European countries that have long-standing traditions of professional chimney sweeps, I have been told that it is considered good luck to have a chimney sweep cross your path. The sweeps often have official uniforms with fancy silver shirt buttons. A customer told me people from her village were always sure to touch the sweep's cuff button for good luck.

I told her that these traditions probably came about because chimney sweeps, in the run of a day, find and remedy (often for no extra charge) problems that could have ended with tragedy.

Chimney sweeping is one of the oldest occupations

Did You Know?

The occupation of chimney sweep is considered to be one of the oldest in the world, as chimneys have been around since ancient times, though it is only in the last 200 years that the chimney has grown large enough to hold a man.

In the 15th and 16th centuries in Western Europe, construction of rooflines with crow-stepped gables became common to allow chimney sweeps convenient access to the chimney tops. With the increase in urban population and houses with chimneys, the occupation of chimney sweep became much respected and sought after.

Mould: How to stop a growing problem

Health Canada estimates that Canadians spend almost 90 per cent of their time indoors, underlining the importance of good indoor air quality in keeping Canadians healthy. Air quality can be affected by a number of variables with one of the most common contributors to poor air quality being mould.

Mould is a highly preventable – yet surprisingly common – problem. Masonry products offer the unique advantage of being able to stop mould problems before they begin because brick, block and stone work to maintain good indoor air quality, as opposed to endanger it.

Research shows that in recent years there has been a shift towards the use of inexpensive building materials, in part to help decrease building costs. However, while these materials may offer cost savings up front, they can have a devastating effect on the health of our communities.

According to www.MasonryWorx.com, masonry products are the best choice for preventing mould growth for two reasons: masonry veneer wall systems offer superior moisture management, and they do not provide a food source for the mould to flourish. Concrete block, in particular, has been instrumental in ensuring commercial and public buildings remain mould-free.

The increased use of materials such as vinyl or metal siding and exterior insulated finishing systems (EIFS) in residential communities may contribute to moisture accumulation in the wall systems and mould growth in two ways: by allowing water penetration into the wall system or by inhibiting the drying of moisture to the exterior.

Choosing the right cladding materials is imperative to maintaining healthy indoor air quality at home. Masonry products offer benefits above and beyond the cost savings associated with alternative claddings. A properly designed masonry drainage wall system allows moisture to naturally pass through the wall and to drain out through the weep-hole system; moisture is contained in the cavity and never penetrates the vapour/air barrier, thus protecting the inside of a building or a home from mould.

Incorporating masonry materials into the design of homes is not only more aesthetically pleasing, but also contributes to superior resale value and provides a healthier, safer home.

Clean up those walls once and for all

A small scratch

Step 1: Apply a layer of primer to the scratched area and let dry.

Step 2: Sand the area to make sure the surface is flat and even.

Step 3: Repaint the section to match the rest of the wall.

(Drywall compound comes pre-mixed and ready-to-use.)

Step 2: Once dry, sand down any excess drywall so that it is flush with the wall.

Step 3: Prime

Step 4: Paint

to the edges of the chipped paint with a putty knife or flexible wallboard knife and let dry.

Step 3: Sand the patched areas until they are smooth to the touch with no edges.

Step 4: Repaint these sections to match the rest of your wall.

Once the nicks and scuffs are gone for good, why not refresh the entire room with a new coat of paint. Not only is it a great way to easily refresh a room, it can also be a budget-friendly D-I-Y project.

Shedding light on a bright solution

It is important to know the facts when choosing the right lighting for your home. With so many options available, and pending federal government legislation in 2012 to ban inefficient incandescent bulbs, people are thinking more and more about the type of light bulb that is right for their home – now and in the future. In addition to so many options of bulbs, people are becoming more conscious of the effect of lighting on their health and the environment.

- One of the most popular energy efficient choices on the market today is compact fluorescent lighting (CFL). Much has been said and written on this technology's performance limitations, and that if not handled correctly, can be more harmful than good. However, many experts agree that CFLs are the best option available at this time for those looking to help reduce energy use and ultimately your energy costs.

Looking at the basic facts is important. Compact fluorescent bulbs use 75 per cent less energy than standard incandescent bulbs and last up to 10 years. "The performance of lighting technology has improved drastically over the past 20 years due to advancements in warm-up time, light output, colour, and dimming capabilities," says Tim Waterfield, product manager, for Philips Lighting Canada. Compact fluorescents are available as a direct replacement for virtually all applications in and around your home.

Those opposed to CFLs are quick to point out that the bulbs contain mercury and can be hazardous to you if broken or when they are discarded. Handled correctly, CFLs are not likely to break with the proper installation, usage or replacement. Also, there are many areas available in local communities where bulbs can be discarded safely, and instructions on how to properly clean up a broken bulb are accessible through Health Canada at www.hc-sc.gc.ca.

As for disposal, The Home Depot has made this easy and convenient. Any expired CFL can be taken to any Home Depot across Canada and placed in the compact fluorescent bulb recycling box at the front of the store. The bulb components (including the mercury) are recycled at no expense to the consumer.

The bottom line is that the benefits of using CFLs far outweigh any risks if you are looking to make your home and the environment a more beautiful place.

Electrical work is riskier than you think

Many of us want to believe we are skilled and competent enough to complete our own home renovations. The do-it-yourself movement has taken off in Canada and has grown even more with the onset of the recession and the downturn in the housing market.

Canadian homeowners want to create more space, get that modern look and make repairs whenever they arise, all while being as cost-effective as possible.

Although there are certain tasks that should be left to professionals, the definition of what constitutes a "professional" can sometimes be a little blurry. In fact, a recent Leger Marketing survey shows almost half of Ontario homeowners believe they do not need a licensed electrical contractor to do simple electrical work in their homes. This is a concern for the Electrical Safety Authority (ESA), which is responsible for enforcing Ontario's Contractor Licensing Regulation. This regulation requires all contracted electrical work to be done by a Licensed Electrical Contractor (LEC). "There are countless risks associated with performing electrical work, including risk of electrical fire, injury or even death," says Lucy

Impera, registrar-licensing and certification of the Electrical Safety Authority. "What many homeowners consider to be 'simple' or 'easy' tasks can actually be quite dangerous and should be performed by a qualified Licensed Electrical Contractor."

Homeowners need to be aware of the potential risks associated with common electrical work. Using accident and fire statistics and investigative reports, the ESA has assigned a risk factor to common electrical tasks with zero representing the lowest risk and 10 representing the highest.

Homeowners: don't hire unqualified contractors for dangerous work

A recent study reveals unlicensed workers cost homeowners unnecessary time and money. Almost half of Ontario homeowners allow an unqualified person or contractor to perform dangerous electrical work in their homes despite a law making it illegal to do so.

According to a recent Leger Marketing survey, 45 per cent of Ontario homeowners do not find it necessary to check the credentials of contractors before hiring them to perform electrical work, such as rewiring a fuse or breaker panel or adding new electrical receptacles or switches. In addition, more than 70 per cent of homeowners would allow a neighbour, friend or handyman to install a new light fixture for them, while 47 per cent would permit them to repair an electrical outlet and 43 per cent would let them wire an outdoor light timer - all of which are considered dangerous if not performed properly.

The data comes more than two years after the Ontario government passed a law requiring all contracted electrical work to be performed by a Licensed Electrical Contractor (LEC). The law came into force in January 2007 in response to the increasing number of electrical incidents involving property damage, injury and death.

"We are concerned that Ontario homeowners continue to put the safety and lives of their loved ones at risk by not ensuring that the contractor they hire to do electrical work is qualified to do so," says Lucy Impera, Registrar-Licensing Certification of the Electrical Safety Authority (ESA), the governing body that administers and enforces these licensing laws.

Homeowners' impulse for hiring unlicensed contractors has cost them a significant amount of time and money. More than one-third of homeowners have had negative renovation experiences while an equal number have had to pay to fix improper electrical work.

"We understand today's homeowners are looking to save money, but hiring an unlicensed person will inevitably lead to more costs down the road," says Impera. "It's better to hire someone who is licensed and insured to protect the safety of your family and property, right from the start."

In the last ten years, 106 Ontarians have died as a

Hot electricity tips

- Do you need to hammer nails or cut an opening in a wall? Shut down the electric circuits that serve the room where you are working.

- Before repairing an electric device, disconnect it!

- The circuits of your power distribution panel should be clearly marked to show the rooms and items serviced by each circuit.

- Do you need to replace a fuse? Before replacing a blown fuse, be sure that you have a replacement fuse of the same rating, place the master switch in the OFF position, and, before restoring current, reduce the load by disconnecting a few electrical devices. If a circuit breaker pops, this same technique must be used, and the short circuit must be found.

Laundry and the environment – myths versus facts

With new green products launching all the time, a recent survey shows that Canadians are facing some confusion about how to make their laundry habits more sustainable. The Leger survey, sponsored by Tide Canada, revealed that nine in ten Canadians said it's very important to them to use an environmentally-friendly detergent. However, when asked to identify what makes a laundry detergent more sustainable, most respondents (33 per cent) chose phosphate-free.

What might be surprising to most consumers is that most laundry products sold in Canada are in fact already phosphate-free and have been for years.

As environmental awareness has increased, consumers have become bombarded with green messaging, some of which is confusing or even misleading. Here are some facts that will help you make informed choices in the laundry aisle.

Myth: Products with "green" in the name are more environmentally-friendly

Fact: Although a recent survey revealed that almost two thirds of Canadians believe this, there are many factors involved in making a laundry product more environmentally-friendly, including the size of the container and whether it can be recycled, if it's concentrated, if it's formulated for energy-saving appliances or if it will achieve results in cold-water washing.

Myth: You should look for laundry products that are phosphate-free

Fact: In Canada, most laundry products are phosphate-free and have been for several years

Myth: Washing in cold water is not as effective as washing in warm water

Fact: If you have a traditional top-loading washing machine and an electric water heater, making the switch with Tide Coldwater from warm/cold cycles to cold/cold cycles can save up to 70 per cent of energy in every load. Making this simple switch each time can mean up to $53 in savings on your electricity bill every year.

Myth: You don't need to use specially-formulated laundry products for coldwater washing

Fact: In order to get great cleaning results, you should use a laundry product that is specially-formulated for coldwater washing such as Tide Coldwater HE detergent

Myth: You don't need to use specially-formulated laundry products in a high-efficiency washing machine

Fact: Regular laundry products are not as effective in high-efficiency machines. For best results, use a product that is specially formulated for high-efficiency washing.

Walker's Heating and Cooling honoured

Eden Energy Equipment honours Walker's Heating and Cooling with 15 years service as dedicated WaterFurnace dealer

Eden Energy Equipment honoured Walker's Heating and Cooling of Haliburton with a plaque noting 15 years of service as a dedicated independent WaterFurnace dealer at their 2009 annual dealer meeting

"We are very proud to have Walker's Heating and Cooling as part of our independent WaterFurnace dealer network. They have been installing and servicing WaterFurnace geothermal equipment in the Haliburton area for over 15 years" says Grant Blackmore, president of Eden Energy Equipment.

Walker's Heating and Cooling sells and services WaterFurnace products to Haliburton and surrounding areas. According to the Environmental Protection Agency, geothermal systems are the most energy efficient, cost effective and environmentally-friendly space conditioning systems available. Geothermal heating and cooling systems from WaterFurnace can save building owners up to 70 per cent on their monthly energy bills. And because they do not burn any fossil fuels, they provide safe, reliable comfort without flames, fumes or threat of carbon monoxide poisoning.

About Eden Energy Equipment: Eden Energy Equipment Limited was established in 1981 as a wholesale/distribution company to service specialized markets in the HVAC industry. Eden Energy Equipment is the top distributor for WaterFurnace geothermal systems in North America. The success of Eden Energy Equipment is based on exceptional levels of customer service and product performance.

Q: Is it possible for a low-tension, 120-volt wire to cause a fatal shock?

Yes! Statistics confirm that a high percentage of past electrocutions involved 120-volt circuits. In fact, death can be caused by one tenth of the current required to light a single 100-watt, 120-volt light bulb. And electricity at 120 volts is the standard in all houses, today.

Q: If a violent wind knocks a TV antenna onto a conductor, can this affect the television inside the house?

Yes! As soon as it touches a conductor, the antenna provides a pathway that allows uncontrolled electricity to flow directly to the television, creating a hazardous condition.

- News Canada

Q: Are multiple outlets always safe?

No! A surge on the circuit can cause overuse of a multiple outlet, and lead to a fire. We recommend the use of a surge-protected power bar to avoid all possibility of an overload.

Minden Hills Rent-All is on the Move!

Minden Hills Rent-All has moved locations. On October 1, 2009 Dale and Sandy Brinklow moved the business to Hwy 35 and Water Street where Lea's Lawn & Recreation was located. The new location will allow them to display the huge inventory of equipment that they have available to rent. "Many people don't realize there is a tool for just about any job," says Dale. "Our motto is 'work smart, not hard', and at our new location we can have our all of tools and equipment on display. This will help our customers find the right tool for their project."

One of the benefits to having more space and property it will allow Minden Rent-All further expansion to service their customers needs.

Minden Rent-All is also the area dealer for Stihl and Toro. They will carry a great selection of products and of course, service the equipment. They will continue to service and repair small engines, snowmobiles, ATV's, lawnmowers, trimmers and chain saws. They also carry a huge line of Swish Cleaning & Maintenance products.

You can always call to reserve your equipment at 286-3047 or drop in to see Dale and Sandy at their new location and see the huge selection of rental equipment and Stihl and Toro products.
